UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

COURSE OVERVIEW

Pediatric Otolaryngology is a field which has many aspects not known to even general ENT providers. The work up and treatment of these patients is often multifaceted and changing quickly. This has included advancements in rhinology, laryngology, and otology, all of which have differences from known algorithms in adults.

This year's symposium will provide information on cutting edge algorithms and therapies in order to allow for the health care team to provide the best, most advanced and comprehensive ENT care in our tertiary care setting.

TARGET AUDIENCE

This course is designed to meet the educational needs of health professionals involved in all aspects of otolaryngology. This includes a broad audience of otolaryngologists, allergists and immunologists, neurologists, audiologists, internists, pediatricians, primary care providers, nurses, nurse practitioners, and other allied health providers.

EDUCATION OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this course, participants should be able to:

- Understand the broader implication of laryngeal pathology and the varied ways of treating them.
- Better understand and discuss the complexities of pediatric hearing issues and treatments.
- Thoroughly approach pediatric neck masses from both a clinical and radiologic perspective.
- Understand swallowing, dysphagia, and dysphonia as it commonly is evaluated in the otolaryngology practice.
- Discuss non-direct patient care aspects of otolaryngology beyond the sphere of direct clinical medicine.
